

Navy honors Cram Roofing for zero OSHA violations at job site

San Antonio Business Journal

The U.S. Department of the Navy presented Cram Roofing with a safety award for the company's recent work at Camp Lejeune, N.C.

San Antonio-based Cram received the Navy's "Safety Letter of Recognition" honoring exemplary safety and performance.

Ken Lacy, supervisory general engineer for the Department of Navy, says Cram Roofing had no workplace-related injuries or safety violations throughout the life of the contract.

"Cram Roofing is honored to receive this award," says Cram Roofing President Gary Cram. "We take great pride in our safety program, and it is always wonderful to be recognized for that effort."

Cram Roofing has been in business since 1986 and is one of San Antonio's largest full-service commercial roofing companies.
